

MassEcon creates Web listing of business sites

November 24, 2009

BOSTON—The Massachusetts Alliance for Economic Development has created a Web site listing more than 70 market-ready sites around the state to promote expansion opportunities for businesses.

The registry is aimed at letting both in- and out-of-state companies know that Massachusetts has a ready inventory of properties available.

The Web address is <http://www.massecon.com/readymass>.

Gov. Deval Patrick unveiled the site on Tuesday at the Sixth Annual Team Massachusetts Economic Impact Awards.

MassEcon was founded in 1993. It's a private, non-profit partnership of business, industry and government focused on fostering economic growth in the state.■
